Plan Restoration of Jefferson's Garden At Monticello

Richmond, August 16.- How the Garden Club of Virginia is restoring the famous old gardens of Thomas Jefferson at Monticello, his home near Charlottesville, is discussed this month in "The Commonwealth," official publication of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce. The work, under the direction of the Restoration Committee of the Garden Club, is being executed by Milton L. Grigg, Charlottesville architect and member of the Restoration Committee of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation.

Discussing the restoration, Mr. Grigg says:

"So meticulous were the notes and drawings left by Mr. Jefferson that the only real problem confronting those studying his works is one of determining which of the designs now recorded was actually executed. Fortunately, extensive excavations and remaining original units of the garden, together with contemporary paintings and prints, permit a selection of the documents, and from these a most accurate restoration. Truly it may be said, after considering the volumes of original drawings and notes now preserved, that in the current restoration of Monticello, including the structure, decoration, and landscaping, it is possible to achieve a measure of accuracy and of fidelity to original forms never before approached in this country.

"Wild or woods plants, unique in their application to decorative planting arrangements, are being used extensively in the garden restoration. These are being placed in the same beds and in the same quantities indicated by the records in Mr. Jefferson's 'Garden Book'. His 'Farm Book' further reveals records of his tree plantings, and these are being accurately followed in the replacement of those trees lost through storm, age and the agricultural efforts of Mr. Jefferson's successors.

"Walks and steps which have been introduced in recent years will be replaced in new locations by those of forms and materials known to have existed in Jefferson's time. The visitor may pause and rest not on modern benches, but on replicas of the old "setting stones" originally placed by Mr. Jefferson for points of rest along the "roundabouts."

The group restoring his garden is striving to re-create the same mass effect and bloom succession that existed just prior to Mr. Jefferson's passing in 1826. Midst the final expression of his genius will be found beauty. Here in the twilight of life he walked and the strife of the past was forgotten.

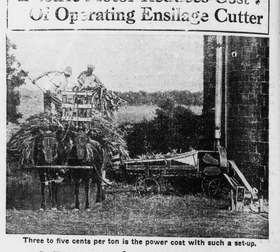
Electric Motor Reduces Cost Of Operating Ensilage Cutter



Three to five cents per ton is the power cost with such a set-up.

By IRA MILLER
Rural Electrification Bureau

FARMERS having high-line electric service can cut their silage costs from 15 to 25 cents per ton by using a portable five-horsepower motor instead of a 15 to 30-horsepower tractor to operate the cutter. Part of that worthwhile saving comes from greatly decreased power costs—the electric motor requiring but approximately one kw.-hr. per ton of ensilage cut and elevated—and part from the smaller crews needed (two to eight instead of 12 to 20 men).

Practically all of the modern silage cutters can be successfully operated by a five-horsepower electric motor. However, some of the older cutters do not have the proper clearance between the ends of the fan wings and the fan housing to give satisfactory elevation at slow speeds and, as a result, cannot be driven by a motor of such low power. In such cases, and especially if the quantity of silage is large, it generally will pay to replace the old cutter with one of modern design.

Although the power required is influenced by the quality of the fodder, the size of the bundles and method of feeding, the size of the cut and the height of the silo, there are several factors controllable by the operator which are of equal or greater importance. The knives on the cutter should be sharpened twice each day so that each set is used for only half a day's run. They should be set closely but without striking the shear bar which must have a sharp, true edge and which should be reversed or replaced if rounded by wear.

The speed of operation is extremely important—the higher it is, the greater the power required per ton of ensilage. Therefore, the cutter should be run at the lowest effective speed that will insure against clogging. The blower pipe should be kept free of dents and must be set so as to form a vertical line from the cutter to the elbow. Sharp angles at the cutter or bends in the pipe greatly reduce the capacity of the pipe.

The motor and cutter frame should be set level and firmly secured. The belt preferably should be of three-ply rubber, endless or spliced, should not be crossed if possible to avoid it and should not be allowed to rub on the cutter frame. The motor should pull from the under side, leaving the belt slack on top and an idler, if used, always should be against the slack side of the belt.

Observation of the foregoing precautions will do much to insure low power costs as well as trouble-free operation.

Vice-President Garner— Will He Respond to Call As Presidential Candidate?

Garner Organization Claims 461 Delegates on First Ballot

DALLAS, Texas.—John Nance Garner, vice-president of the United States, will go into the next Democratic national convention with over 461 votes pledged to him, according to E. B. Germany, chairman of the State Democratic Executive committee and co-chairman of the Texas Garner-for-President committee.

"We are convinced, from the deluge of telegrams we have received at the Dallas headquarters, that there is a genuine popular demand for the nomination of Garner on the Democratic ticket. This comes, not from one section or group of states, but from the entire nation, from Oregon and Vermont, and from Georgia to the Southwest, we are getting the most enthusiastic protestations of friendship and admiration for Vice-President Garner's statesman.

"Mr. Garner's way of thinking has captured the public imagination of the middle ground of America's straight-thinking citizenry. If the politicians do not listen to the voice of the people in 1940, I predict that the Democratic party as an organization won't be worth shooting at. I have heard many comments that politicians are going to pick the next candidates for both the Democratic and Republican parties. My advice to them in both parties is to listen to what the people are thinking. If they don't heed the deep longings of the mass of American citizenry, they will be politically dead after the next election. I repeat: If the Democratic politicians attempt to thwart the will of the people in the next convention, the party of Jefferson and Jackson won't be worth the effort to put out of its misery."

Outlining the strength that he claims for Texan, Mr. Germany pointed out that of 1,100 votes in the Democratic convention, the south and border states will furnish Mr. Garner with 266, the chief block of which is represented by the 46 votes from Texas. The southwest and western states, without counting California, and taking but two of the farm states, Nebraska and Wisconsin will yield Mr. Garner a total of 461 votes.

"Now I am not including in this forecast of 461 the 210 additional votes indicated from the states of New York, Pennsylvania and California," declared Mr. Germany. The Gallup poll in the last three weeks has printed definite forecasts of public opinion from these three states, which together have 19 percent of the total convention strength. These polls show, assuming that the President will not be a candidate which is the only way that Democrats believing in the continuance of its traditional party policies can think, that Mr. Garner is the choice of over 50% of the Democrats in New York and California and of over 60% of the Democrats of Pennsylvania. Out of these three states, two will give Mr. Garner a clear majority of the convention, the Texas leader pointed out.

"There is no question in my mind," declared Mr. Germany, "that the people of the United States have very definite convictions on the coming presidential campaign. The principles involved weigh deeply on citizens everywhere. They embrace Mr. Garner because he stands for a principle that finds welcome response in every human being who worries and sometimes wonders on the future of his country.

"Mr. Garner's nomination by the Democrats of this country is inevitable. It is ordained in the hearts of the American people, and I view his nomination and subsequent election as certain, with the present trend of events."

Seasoned Timber

The athletic contests of the world usually are won by young men Seldom do we find in men over forty that combination of physical strength, endurance and speed that makes the champion

In times of war the men who go "over the top" are young men, as are the men who fly our fighting planes and man our battleships.

In industry and in business there are certain types of work that can best be done by young men at their zenith in physical dexterity and stamina.

But it is a different matter to outline the policies of a giant corporation, to lead a country at war; to understand and solve the complex problems of a great nation; to be able to win the confidence and the full cooperation of leaders in thought and action For such important tasks thoughtful persons demand men of broad experience—"seasoned timber"

The biggest job in the world today is the management of the United States of America Greatest country that it is in material resources and in the brains to develop them—it has social and economic problems that can be coped with only by a man of keenest insight; knowledge obtained by many years of close touch with governmental affairs; and long study of agriculture, industry, and finance from a national viewpoint.

Virile, practical, influential, forceful John N. Garner is the man of the hour today. For thirty years in the House of Representatives and for six years in the Vice-President's chair—thirty-six years of power and of leadership—he has fought for constructive liberalism in government; for true democracy; for social justice; for economic independence of the American citizen. Seasoned in statesmanship, he has the wisdom, the practicality, the understanding of men, the insight into great problems, the extraordinary technique of politics, and the human sympathy that only the years can bring—those qualities that this great nation so vitally needs today.

Galileo made scientific discoveries after he was 70.

Henry Ford, at 75, is still improving the Ford car.

Judge Gary, at 83, headed the giant United States Steel Corporation.

Clemenceau, the Tiger of France, guided his war-weary people at 77

Benjamin Franklin, at 81, helped to frame the American Constitution

Gladstone, when past 85, was Prime Minister of England.

Justice Holmes, at 90, wrote important and exceedingly clear Supreme Court decisions.

John N Garner, in his intellectual prime, at 68, is being called to the Presidency in 1940 by all classes of the American people. He has the confidence of the farmer. He has the confidence of the working man in town and country He has the confidence of the man at the head of an industrial empire and the men of financial power. Vigorous of body and mind, powerful of conviction and courage, wise in the affairs of state, he will carry on all of the sound legislation that has been passed during the term of President Roosevelt.

A great patriot, a great progressive liberal, a great Democrat, a great leader, John Nance Garner will be the next president of the United States!

Sentinels of Health

● Don't Neglect Them! ●

Nature designed the kidneys to do a fine work. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an amount of toxic poisons that would be harmful to health—the kidneys filter waste matter the kidneys must constantly remove the poisonous acids and wastes. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, these poisons may remain in the blood stream and cause trouble. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, and worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passage of the secretions sometimes shows there is something wrong with the kidneys or bladder and may be a warning that some disorder has developed.

The recognized and proper treatment is to use a medicine that helps the kidneys to pass off more of the waste matter that they contain. Use a medicine that has had many years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Ask your neighbor!
